

Educating English Learners

Audience:

All teachers, staff, and administrators practicing in schools that serve English learners

When:

Two sessions to choose from:

Fall 2010: September 2-December 18

-OR-

Spring 2011: January 18-6

Where:

Online

Cost:

For UW graduate credit $911.97
Non-credit $350.00

Your fees include online access to all course materials and a certificate of completion

Discounts available for school districts

Participants in this course will:

- Engage with and analyze issues in the lives of English learners (through extensive video portraits) that impact their language, literacy and academic development
- Examine current research and theory on language and schooling for English learners, and explore implications for practice
- Learn about a range of effective approaches to schooling for English learners, including programs, policies and practices
- Gain a greater understanding of language, and the role it plays in learners' lives and schooling
- Explicitly connect learning to participants' sites and contexts
- Collaborate with an online community of colleagues to share ideas and practices

EDUCATION OUTREACH AND PARTNERSHIPS
University of Wisconsin-Madison

For information and registration, contact

Lisa Hebggen, Outreach Specialist
at 608.263.0951 or lmhebggen@wisc.edu